Canine Emergency Response Button

CareAlert Smart Dialer Model

CANINE EMERGENCY RESPONSE BUTTON

This device arose out of the need of my disabled clients. Frequently they would fall or have seizures and need help, but could not get it. THAT is a terrifying feeling!

We started training their Service Dogs to use a “Doggy Doorbell” to alert neighbors if they were in an apartment setting, but did not have a solution for other housing situations. From this the “Canine Emergency Response Button” was born.

The idea was to develop a device like the doggy doorbell but would activate either a pendant, like the Life Alert™ pendant you see advertised on TV or a dialer that could call a pre-programmed number and play a pre-recorded message.

With extensive research and development an adaptive device was made to use a dialer (CareAlert Smart Dialer) or fit a pendant (currently in production for Monitronics Security Monitoring).

This would enable a trained dog, either pet or Service Animal, to summon help for their parent or partner if their parent or partner fell or was unresponsive.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT THE DIALER

“What a wonderful too for my students. ..In the past there have been “paw on” alerting systems, but not like this. I can see it would meet client needs in alerting assistance needed for a diabetic with an extreme low, a seizure client and mobility client that has fallen... I am impressed with the price and the quality of the pieces involved”

-Pam, Teach 2 Train Service Dogs

“Recently, I managed to get my foot stuck in the bottom of a loveseat (don't ask!). I was terrified because I live alone and no one was expected to be by for days. If I had this device I would have been able to have my dog summon help or I could have used the pendant myself to call for help. Great idea!”
